

KEYNOTE AND WORKSHOP

David Price O.B.E.

Please register your attendance at:

www.davidpricetalk.weebly.com

Brought to you by the Torrens Valley
Partnership of Public Schools & Pre-schools.

What is an education worth having?

This workshop for parents and educators, explores perceptions, beliefs and attitudes around education. Are we creating an education worth having? Are we developing a partnership mindset to enhance students learning?

Birdwood High School

7.00pm, Monday 30th March, 2015

Free admission for all parents and friends of our Torrens Valley Public Schools and Pre-schools. Tea, coffee and light supper supplied.

Keynote and Workshop with David Price OBE

Over the last 15 months the educational leaders of all of the Torrens Valley Partnership of schools and Preschools:-

Birdwood Primary School
Birdwood High School
Gumeracha Primary School
Kersbrook Primary School
Lobethal Primary School
Lobethal Community kindergarten
Mt. Pleasant and District Kindergarten
Mt. Pleasant Primary School
Paracombe Primary School
Springton Primary School
Torrens Valley Children's Centre
Woodside Preschool
Woodside Primary School

have worked extensively with David Price OBE on the challenges facing schools in adequately preparing our students for the complex, ever changing world that awaits them.

It is very timely that we now share this with the parents and friends of each of our school communities. Hence we are jointly funding this exciting opportunity and invite all those interested in the future of our schools and pre-schools to join the conversation.

David's talk highlights the challenge facing all parents and educators in how to best support children for a future where we cannot predict what jobs will exist. The much talked about 21st century skills require us to re-think the way we interact, teach, and use social, formal and informal learning.

Partnership mindset between educators, students and parents must be strong if we are to develop the skills with students that are necessary for student success. This workshop explores:

- What does learning look like in schools and pre-schools today and in the future?
- What should an education worth having be and look like?
- How do we challenge and change attitudes, beliefs and behaviours that inhibit effective partnerships between parents, teachers and young people in learning and schooling?
- Strategies of connecting and collaborating to achieve the best outcomes for student learning.

David Price OBE is a Senior Associate at the Innovation Unit, in England and internationally acclaimed learning futurist.

David has led ground-breaking, education programs that have successfully re-engaged learners in thousands of schools in many countries including UK, Canada, Singapore and Australia. David has given keynote presentations all over the world and created hugely popular teaching resources.

In 2009, David was awarded the OBE, for services to education. His book "Open" released in 2013 has been an Amazon best-seller and highlights how we will live, work and learn in the future. He is currently in Australia working with AITSL on their learning frontiers program on practical strategies and tools to increase student engagement.

Twitter: @educationalarts @davidpriceobe Blog: www.engagedlearning.co.uk